MISS WACKERMAN, FAMOUS BEAUTY, BACK FROM LONDON.

Mental and Bodily Health Shattered by Controversy with Artist-Hope for Recovery.

With bodily and mental health shatthe English painter, Helen Vanderbilt Wackerman arrived in New York today on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, companied by her mother and an She was taken from the pier to uncle. She was taken from the pier to a train for Buffalo, the city of her birth and early youth. In familiar scenes awaiting the return of her mother to hoped that she may recover.

Miss Wackerman appeared in London in the spring of 1900 at a masked ball at Guildhail. Her remarkable beauty attracted wide attention, and portrait painters besieged her with requests to sit for them. Artists of world-wide renown pronounced her the most beauiful woman in the world.

Among those whose attention was attracted was Prof. Herkomer. He saw her portrait, painted by Ellis Roberts, and immediately wrote to Mrs. Wacker-man, asking if she would allow her and immediately wrote to Mrs. Wackerman, asking if she would allow her daughter to sit for him. After an interchange of cordial letters a sitting was arranged. The Wackermans were then living in the Langham Hotel in London, where Prof. Herkomer and his wife had apartments.

It became necessary for Mrs. Wackerman to visit the nUited States. She left her daughter, the guest of the Herkomer controversy was on. Prof. Herkomer has never adequately explained his action in driving the girl from his home. There has been talk of legal action against him, but the condition of the young woman has been such as to forbid any further excitement.
